

(Editor's Note: — The famous Pearson and Allen Brass Ring, good for one free ride on The Washington Merry-go-Round, is hereby presented to William C. Bullitt, U. S. Ambassador to France.)

Washington — William Christian Bullitt, meteoric mystery man of Mr. Roosevelt's foreign relations, is back on another mission so mysterious that not even the State Department knew in advance what it was all about.

Inside fact, however, is that Ambassador Bullitt has come back with a personal plan for preserving the peace of Europe, which he is putting up to the president.

This is not the first international peace plan Bill Bullitt has pulled out of the grey felt hat which covers his round and barren head. Back in 1932, after Roosevelt had been elected, but not yet inaugurated, Bullitt made a mysterious round of the European capitals laying plans for Roosevelt's subsequent talks with Ramsay MacDonald, Herriot and other delegates to the London Economic Conference.

Then, as now, Bullitt remained carefully in the background. He had no official status, no diplomatic passport, and he denied out of both sides of his mouth that he represented Roosevelt. Yet on the very day Roosevelt was making the same denial at his Warm Springs press conference, it subsequently developed that Bullitt had phoned the president-elect from the study of Ramsay MacDonald at No. 10 Downing Street.

Social Scion
Bullitt's ven for the unusual was cultivated at an early age. Scion of a wealthy Philadelphia family, he was graduated from Yale, and then came home to startle the staid society of the City of Brotherly Love as a playboy journalist, even wrote a sensational novel about it, called "It's Not Done."

The United States entered the World War while Bull was a foreign correspondent, and he left the newspaper game to join the state department, from which he was catapulted into fame and fortune as an adviser to Woodrow Wilson at Versailles.

Bullitt's biggest job during the peace conference was as a secret emissary to Russia to arrange relations with the newly formed Soviet. Lloyd George and Clemenceau cut the ground from under him by placing the allied money on the White Russians, but Bullitt came back convinced there was something in the Russian revolution which would live.

There is an irrepressible streak of idealism constantly bubbling up in Bill Bullitt, but at the Versailles Conference it was almost quenched. Finally he resigned, returned home, and later gave sensational evidence before a senate committee regarding the pitfalls ahead of European peace.

Soviet Envoy
Subsequent events have more than justified Bullitt, but his optimistic idealism remains undimmed. It was this idealism which inspired Bullitt's part in the resumption of relations with Russia. Roosevelt would have recognized Russia anyway, but Bullitt pushed it to an earlier conclusion, later became first U. S. Ambassador to the Soviet.

Coupled with Bullitt's idealism is a tendency, when things don't go his way, to get sore and quit. This was what he did at Versailles, and what he did at Moscow.

He began his ambassadorial career in a blaze of popularity. He taught polo to Litvinoff and Stalin. His small daughter played dolls with Litvinoff's daughter. The Soviet gave him the choicest building lot in Moscow for his embassy. He was the idol of Russia.

But when Bullitt ran against a snag in negotiating a debt agreement, he got sore. Relations between him and Stalin cooled. Litvinoff no longer was the eager polo student. It became dull in Moscow, and Bullitt quit.

He came back to Washington last summer still an idealist, still bubbling over with enthusiasm, still looking for more diplomatic worlds to conquer.

Roosevelt's Friend
Bullitt's chief assets have been contagious charm, a personality that he can make hot or cold like running water, and, in these latter years, the ability to make Franklin Roosevelt believe that anything Bullitt says is gospel.

This was the secret of his ability to be appointed Secretary Bullitt's assistant when Bull definitely didn't want him, and later to become Ambassador to France when nobody in the state department wanted him.

What Bullitt sold Roosevelt last summer was not so much that he, Bullitt, needed a new diplomatic berth in Paris, but that an opportunity awaited the president of

STRUGGLE FOR CONTROL OF LABOR GROWS

OPPONENTS TO PACKED COURT PLAN ATTACKS

Will Culminate in Big Meeting in N. Y. City Friday

Washington, March 6—(AP)—Senatorial opponents of court reorganization massed their attack today on two fronts: The presidents call for immediate action and the approach of crucial public hearings on the issue.

Senator Burke (D-Neb.) told reporters there would be "a new alignment of parties in this country by 1938" if Roosevelt should carry his point.

The president's foes, carefully preparing to trade blow for blow, arranged a series of addresses culminating in a mass meeting next Friday at Carnegie Hall, New York.

They also hinted they had lined up a prominent "surprise" witness to lead off their side of the case before the senate judiciary committee. They would not disclose his name.

While Burke and his colleagues

Corrects F. D. R.

Washington, March 6—(AP)—Chairman Copeland (D-NY) of the senate commerce committee said today failure to provide adequate flood control was "the fault of" the budget bureau—not the Supreme Court.

He made the statement in reply to President Roosevelt's speech on court reorganization last Thursday night. "This delay in flood control," he said, "is not occasioned by any prohibition in the law or any decision of the Supreme Court. By the explicit language of the Constitution, specifically upheld by the Supreme Court, congress is authorized to deal with all matters of navigation and commerce between states."

were serving notice of a "fight to the bitter end," the president and his chieftains went ahead with their campaign to try to sell the court program to the nation.

Plans "Fireside Chat"
Roosevelt worked on the "fireside chat" in which he will make his second plea to the country on Tuesday night.

On Capitol Hill, his lieutenants prepared to follow up this speech with supporting testimony before the committee hearings beginning the next day.

Opponents announced replies to the president's speeches would be given by four Democratic senators from as many sections of the country at the New York meeting.

The speakers, they said, would include Walsh of Massachusetts, publicly at least, a new recruit to their cause. The others are George of Georgia, Copeland of New York, and Burke.

On Wednesday night, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) will reply to the president from Chicago.

Story of a Dog

Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 6—(AP)—Mrs. David Hann suspected her pet dog today of carrying her wedding ring in its mouth for three years. The ring, missing since 1934, dropped from the animal's mouth yesterday. She said she believed the dog had picked up the ring and it clung to a tooth until loosened.

Missouri Relief Administrator Dies on Threatened "Doomsday"

Poplar Bluff, Mo., March 6—(AP)—Federal and state officials today sought to determine whether or not a "Doomsday" note found in his pocket held a clue to the sudden death yesterday of Delois F. Teed, Butler county relief administrator.

Teed died unexpectedly at his desk late yesterday—the day designated in an abusive letter received a week ago. The note warned Teed to leave town within seven days "or it will be judgment day for you." Yesterday was the seventh day.

Coroner Grover Greer ordered a post mortem today. A possibility that death was caused by a heart attack induced by fear was indicated by the coroner who said a copy of the threatening message

Famous Tree

Le Claire, Iowa, Mar. 6—(AP)—Le Claire today launched a campaign to save its famous "green tree," the best known tree on the Mississippi river.

It has been "discovered" that large holes in the trunk and rotting limbs threaten the tree's life and make a major operation by an expert tree surgeon necessary if the old elm is to survive.

A committee headed by George Brown, has been named to raise funds to provide the operation.

Col. William F. (Buffalo Bill) Cody played beneath the old tree and a monument to him was erected there some years ago by the late Joe Barnes, a boyhood chum. The elm is registered in the tree hall of fame in Washington.

NEW TENEMENT FIRE DESTROYS HUGE BUILDING

Second Big Blaze in New York Slums Within Week

New York, March 6—(AP)—Slum clearance—by fire—speeded up today as flames destroyed another five-story tenement in New York's ghetto, where three died Thursday in the destruction of two buildings.

There was no loss of life today, as the fire swept through a building now used for baking and storing matzo, ceremonial bread for the Jewish passover.

But from an "old law" tenement next door, 14 families were driven into the streets. One of those saved as the flames roared to spectacular heights was suffering from pneumonia.

Echoes of Thursday's tragedy on nearby Suffolk street sounded in several quarters.

Relief Station Closed
About 200 homeless, joined by sympathizers, milled around a relief station on Bleecker street that failed to open as usual. Some of the refugees tried to start a "sit-down" strike there last night.

Protest meetings were staged in several sections of the city as 25 witnesses were questioned at the district attorney's office in an effort to fix responsibility for the Suffolk street disaster.

Relief agencies formed special committees to alleviate the suffering. Post said that pressure would be exerted to repair 750 tenements, and bring them into conformance with new fire laws.

SPECTACULAR FIRE

San Francisco, March 6—(AP)—Fire on a wrecked freighter, with dynamite and oil in its hold, was battled through the night by a two-man bucket brigade in the Golden Gate while thousands watched from shore.

Capt. E. J. Mitchell, who fought the freighter Ohioan for salvage, after it grounded at Point Lobos last October, and William Phillips, his assistant, were the two men on the ship.

Mitchell said there were 120 sticks of dynamite, a large quantity of caps and some 9,000 gallons of oil aboard. By breeches buoy the two reached the freighter from nearby cliffs. Only a hundred yards away, on the cliffs near the Suito Baths, were many of the city's firemen, but Mitchell and Phillips fought unaided.

ENGINEER WANTS TO SHOW WIFE HE ISN'T BIGAMIST

Believe Surrender To Police Would Prove Point

Cincinnati, March 6—(AP)—Thomas Gilliland, 39, an engineer, walked into central police station today and asked that he be held until he could prove to his wife, Ethel, that he had not been married before.

"My wife believes I'm a bigamist and that I'm wanted for murder," Gilliland told Lieut. George Peary. "I can't convince her I'm innocent. I told her I would surrender to police to prove I'm guiltless."

The difficulty started Gilliland said, when his wife saw his picture in a detective magazine. The story told of a murder mystery at Granite City, Ill., in 1921 in which Gilliland was charged with killing his wife.

"I was innocent but couldn't get anyone to believe me," he said. "I wasn't even married."

Cause of Mix-Up

The mix-up resulted, he said, from the fact a girl with whom he had kept company had gone to Cincinnati to work about the time a woman's body was found in a wheat field. There, Gilliland said, Chief Roy Clark of Granite City finally found her and "brought her back to prove my innocence."

Later, he said, the body that had been erroneously identified as that of his girl friend was identified as that of another woman. Her slayer was captured and convicted, Gilliland said.

The magazine story told how the mystery was solved. Gilliland said, but did not say Gilliland had never been married.

Detective Chief Emmett D. Kirgan wired police of Granite City, and assured Gilliland he would be released if his story checked out.

Improvement of Dixon Streets To Be Talked By Commission Monday

Special Meeting To Be Devoted to Discussion

Members of the city commission will meet Monday to discuss plans for improving streets in Dixon during the summer months. At the regular weekly meeting last evening, Commissioner Joe E. Vaile of the department of streets, introduced the subject of street improvement and called the attention of the commissioners to the condition of certain streets requiring immediate repair. The commissioner strongly urged action by the council, with a view of starting operations early in the season instead of waiting until late fall and early winter.

He emphasized the fact that his department budget would not permit an extensive program of street improvement, and outlined some plans which he asked the members of the commission to consider. The foremost improvement suggested by the commissioner of streets, was that of Chamberlain street. His plan provides for scarifying and resurfacing the street from the entrance to Assembly park, west to Upham Place where it intersects with the Lincoln highway. The present high crown in the center of the street could be removed and would furnish ample material for the improvement of North Jefferson avenue and other streets in the northeast section of the city which are almost impassable at the present time, Commissioner Vaile told the council. He included in his tentative program the improvement of a section of East McKinney street, from Galena to Jefferson avenues.

Gas Tax Credit

The commissioner explained to the council that the city has a present credit of approximately $14,000 in gas tax refund in Springfield and suggested the use of this fund in improving the streets. The bridge on Madison avenue near Fifth street is badly in need of repair and a storm water ditch in the west end of the city must be taken care of without delay, the council was told.

Mayor Slothower agreed with the commissioner that the time to outline a street improvement program was in the early spring and favored the calling of a special gathering of the council to discuss and formulate such a program. The mayor, however, questioned the advisability of expending the sum of $14,000 in gas tax refund due the city on streets in the residential section, and suggested improving the streets in the business district. Some of the more urgent improvements, the mayor assured Commissioner Vaile, would be considered in the annual appropriation ordinance, so as not to weaken the amount appropriated for the street department.

Urged Program

Commissioner Vaile invited the opinions of all members of the city commission in the draft of a street improvement program this summer and it was decided to discuss the projects at a special meeting to be held Monday.

The council voted favorably in granting a license to Ben Howard to conduct a used car and parts

$10,000 Needed to Repair or Replace Bridges in County

When the Lee county board of supervisors convene in regular March session next week, applications will be filed requesting county aid approximately $10,000 in the repair and rebuilding of bridges and culverts throughout the county. The county highway fund from which these appropriations are made now shows a balance of about $1,600.

For the past five years, County Superintendent of Highways Fred W. Leake has urged the board to take some action toward providing funds for the repair and reconstruction of old bridges and culverts which are unsafe for traffic. It has been suggested that a county bond issue be voted to provide funds for this purpose. Ancient types of structures, which have partially collapsed, have caused highway commissioners from several townships to make application for county aid this spring in repairing or reconstructing these structures.

Superintendent Leake stated today that he considered a bond issue as the only means for providing funds with which to meet this emergency, and indicated that greater demands might be expected within the next few years.

FROST CAUSED CRASH

William Johnson of Nachusa sustained a compound fracture of the right arm and cuts and bruises about the head in an automobile accident at the entrance to the Dixon Municipal airport shortly after 7 o'clock this morning. His car skidded on the frost-covered paving and crashed into a large truck which was parked on the left side of the paving. The truck had broken down about midnight and was parked awaiting repairs. State Highway Officer Edward Mahan was summoned and removed the injured man to the Katherine Shaw Betha hospital, then had the wrecked car hauled to a local garage.

IN CIRCUIT COURT

Judge Harry Edwards in the circuit court this morning, heard arguments presented by counsel arising in a disputed claim in which the directors of the Katherine Shaw Betha hospital have brought action against Ashton township. The claim was contracted in 1934 when Ruth Wissman of Ashton township was a patient in the hospital. Attorney H. C. Warner appeared for the hospital board and State's Attorney Edward Jones represented Ashton township. Leave was granted the latter to file a written motion with the court. Mrs. Avis Miller of Harmon township, was granted a decree for divorce from William M. Miller on charges of cruelty. The court ordered that Miller pay the sum of $10 monthly for the care of a seven year old son.

Gang of "Young Hellions" to Be Questioned About Child's Death

Windsor, Vt., March 6—(AP)—Police Chief John Edmonds said today a "gang of young hellions" would be questioned for information in connection with the slaying of four-year-old Beverly Ann Page of Claremont, N. H., whose battered body was found last night in Mill pond.

Edmonds said residents of this little town on the Connecticut river had told him of a group of boys "not much older" than Beverly Ann who practiced cruelties on younger children. One of their customs, he said, was to hold others under water until they came up gasping. The Chief, half of Windsor's police department, did not identify the group further.

Meanwhile State Pathologist Charles F. Whitney prepared to conduct an autopsy. Preliminary examination disclosed State's Attorney Albion Parker said that the child met death by violence and that "there was an attempted criminal attack."

At Claremont, N. H., General hospital, about 10 miles away, nurses shielded the child's mother, who gave birth to a daughter Monday, from news of her only other daughter's fate.

Diamond Rush

Georgetown, British Guiana, March 6—(AP)—A diamond reported to weigh 203 carats, found by a Negro laborer 100 miles in the jungle, has precipitated a rush, said wireless advices received here today. Stamping out fortune seekers were said to have found one 18 carat stone and several smaller ones.

Wealth came suddenly to an aged prospector three years ago near Pretoria, Union of South Africa, when he discovered two large stones—one of 500 carats and the other of 726. The larger, which became known as the "Johnkner Diamond," was brought to the United States and cut.

DISAPPEARANCE OF PARTY GUEST BRINGS MYSTERY

Others On French Liner Summoned For Questioning

Plymouth, Eng., March 6—(AP)—Frank Vosper, 37, one of England's "brilliant young men" of the theater, walked out of a British beauty queen's champagne party aboard the French liner Paris today and vanished.

Passengers who attended the gay affair in the cabin of Muriel Oxford, "Miss Great Britain" of 1936, were reported summoned for an investigation by officers of the liner.

The comely Miss Oxford, who had been appearing in a New York revue was deeply distressed. She said Vosper, an actor-playwright, stepped out of her cabin onto a deck and "did not come back."

Friends said she and Vosper became acquainted on the voyage from New York.

Peter Wiles, a fellow Londoner and intimate of Vosper, said he was convinced "shirley" was convinced his friend was dead.

Miss Oxford went to New York some time ago with a group of chorus girls.

Detailed Statement

When she reached London on the boat train from Plymouth she gave her first detailed statement of the incident.

"We were just friends. There was no question of a love affair between us. In America the newspapers had 'engaged me' several times. It was just talk. Mr. Vosper and I were nothing more than friends."

Ship's officers reported a passenger on the Paris, whose identity they did not disclose, said he heard a man's voice saying: "If you do not marry me, I will jump overboard."

But Miss Oxford denied this flatly.

Vosper's career began on the London stage in 1919 and broadened to include Shakespearean roles and a tour of the Orient. He is the author of the play "Murder on the Second Floor."

Subsequently in the films he appeared in "Rome Express," "Red Ensign," "Waltzes From Vienna," "Jew Suss," "Dick Turpin," "The Man Who Knew Too Much," "Open All Night," "Blind Justice," and "Heart's Desire."

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The end of a week of momentous developments in the field of industrial unionization saw a quickening today of the struggle for control of labor.

In the steel industry the leaders of so-called "company unions" joined the battle whose major contending forces heretofore have been the American Federation of Labor and John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

Recognition of the C. I. O. as sole bargaining agent for its members in the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., gave Lewis' supporters an early advantage but their foes quickly mapped a counter-offensive.

At Pittsburgh leaders of the corporation's employee representatives drafted plans for combating the C. I. O. intentions to enroll the nation's 550,000 steel workers. A committee was authorized to reorganize the "company union" structure.

Must Be Uninfluenced

Although at odds with the Lewis organization, President William Green of the A. F. O. L. declined to attack the C. I. O. through support of the Carnegie-Illinois employee group. He told the latter it must be wholly free from company influence before the A. F. O. L. could recognize it as an ally.

The Committee for Industrial Organization will meet in Washington Tuesday at the call of Lewis to discuss unionization campaigns in several large industries, among them the textile industry employing 1,250,000 workers.

Reports of a threatened strike by Pittsburgh workers of the Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co. cropped out after a C. I. O. union demanded a 20 per cent wage increase for more than 8,000 employees. Pending were bargaining conferences between the C. I. O. and another electric manufacturing concern—General Electric Co., employing 60,000 workers.

Disorder in Chicago

Arrests and sluggings marked a taxicab drivers' strike in Chicago. Leaders claimed 1,800 Yellow cab drivers and 800 Checker company chauffeurs were on strike for more pay and other concessions. Officials of the companies contended about 200 quit work.

Geisha Girls Win

Right To Organize

Guild, End Strike

(Osaka, Japan, March 6—(AP)—

Three hundred gaily-clad geisha-

girl entertainers in Osaka's bright-lighted cafes—ended their eight-day sit-down strike today with recogniguild.

The striking girls, who spent more than a week of self-immo-

by harassed Osaka employers.

BIGGEST CROP MILLIONAIRES IN SIX YEARS

(Washington, March 6—(AP)—

Treasury officials forecast today

that the biggest crop of millionaires

in six years would file income tax returns this month.

Although they will not know definitely until clerks have thumbed

through 1936 returns, officials said

the accelerated pace of the nation's business machinery last year indicated an upturn in $1,000,000 incomes.

Forty-one millionaires were among the 4,500,000 persons filing

returns last year. If the millionaire

class was increased by 10 this year,

it would be the largest since 1931.

Millionaires, as the internal revenue bureau refers to them, are persons with incomes of more than a million dollars a year.

Altogether, officials estimated about 6,000,000 returns would be filed by the March 15 deadline, including 500,000 or so from corporations. Of the total returns, only about 55 to 60 per cent will be taxable.

All single persons with net income of $1,000 or more and married persons with $2,500 or more must file returns, regardless of whether they are allowed sufficient deductions to avoid any tax payments.

Attendance Good At Stony Point School, February

Stony Point school reports a month of good attendance and activity despite the fact that February is usually a month noted for colds and contagion. There were, however, a few cases of illness. Lola Belle Siders of the third grade submitted to an appendicitis operation at the Katherine Shaw B-thea hospital from which she is recovering nicely and has returned to school. Lewis Nagy, sixth grade pupil, is improving, although he is still at the hospital. He is able to sit up part of the day. His classmates are anxious to see Lewis back in his place at school again. Thelma Myers, of second grade, is welcomed back at school this week after an absence due to illness of almost five weeks duration. The sympathy of all in school was extended to the Pine children in the death of their baby brother on February 5.

Those who had perfect attendance during the month were:

Upper grades: Lois Siders, Amos Earl Roebuck, Elias Jones, Charley Viad, Harriet Bay, Howard Smith, Eva Lance, Murphy Stanley, Kenneth Stanley, Joe Hink, June Walter, Billy Zimmerman, Thelma Wambwell, Carl Bay, Marjorie Laidig, Jack Fore.

The pupils of both rooms and several visitors enjoyed games and refreshments at a Valentine party Feb. 12. Mrs. Joseph Laidig treated all to delicious Valentine cookies. Mr. Norman McClanahan furnished sauerkraut and wieners as a special treat to the entire school. Feb. 15 it was relished heartily and the school extends thanks to these patrons for their kind thoughtfulness.

The primary room pupils are enjoying rhythm band practice and much interest is being shown.

Birthdays observed during the month were: Shirley Houston and Thelma Myers, Amos Earl Roebuck, Feb. 10; Howard Smith, Feb. 25; Marjorie Laidig, Feb. 28, and Mrs. Lambert, whose birthday is Feb. 29. Drama On Africa At Missionary Group Meeting

Mrs. Harry Stauffer entertained the Missionary society of the Christian church Thursday evening at her home.

Once a year, an evening meeting is held with the men taking part on the program. The president, Mrs. S. A. Bennett presided. After a song, Mrs. Bennett gave a prayer. Mr. Stauffer gave the offertory prayer. Rev. J. A. Barnett, told of the pre-Easter meetings to be two weeks beginning week after next. Harry Stauffer led the devotions. He read a part of the eighteenth chapter of Luke—also an article from World Call and closed with a prayer.

Donald Stauffer favored with a vocal solo, accompanied by Mrs. Don Anderson. Rev. Barnett had planned the program which proved very interesting. It was an imaginary trip up the Congo river, visiting missionary stations on the steamship, "Oregon" means "good news."

Mrs. Kindig as "Elamba" wife of the captain, acted as guide and pilot to the guests coming aboard which was the missionary society. With a map she showed where each mission station was located. Bolenga was the first one visited. A. L. Huffman as "Mark" told about it and what a wonderful place it is. Mrs. A. J. Fellows as "Boyle" showed Lotumbe. Mrs. Kindig represented "Dr. Jaggard" who showed the hospital in Momiaka and what they do.

Mrs. Leach as "Mr. Johnston" talked about the beauties of "Nervya." Mrs. Don Anderson was "Miss Hattie Mitchell" for the time being and took us ashore. It was a thoroughly enjoyable trip as well as instructive and will long live in the memories of the guests as they saw and heard these missionaries tell of their work.

Mrs. Frank Gates gave the second chapter of the book, "Out of Africa" by Emory Ross. A prayer by Rev. J. A. Barnett ended the program. A social hour followed and delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Stauffer and Mrs. Pearl Reynolds.

HEART TROUBLE — BY "HELENE"

She Will Solve Your Love Once Each Week In This Column Appearing Saturdays

Morris, Ill., March 2, 1937
Dear Helene: Ever since my marriage of six years ago, my husband has been shiftless and it seems he does not try to find work, while I have been working if I have anything at all.

Now my dear Helene, I love my husband very much but I just can't go on making the living for both of us.—S. M. S.

Dear S. M. S.: It seems so odd to me when a man goes to the altar and vows that he will protect his wife and then after they are married many of them depend on their wives.

My dear, some men are beaten very easily. You say you love him. Maybe you love him too much. True enough you can't go on this way. Your place is in the home with thoughts connected with housework.

Surely your husband has some special kind of work. If children interest you and you want them, there is the solution to your problem. Your husband, if he has any principle at all will want to work for his child. If not, why don't you go away for awhile. Maybe he needs to be on his own a short time.

I hope, this advice will help you to make your husband what you want him to be. May I hear the outcome? —Helene.

Dear Helene: I am hoping for help from your column, although I am so discouraged that it seems too much to expect help from anyone. I am nineteen years old, and am in love with a man who is twenty-five.

He holds a responsible position and I have known him for two years. Of course we want to get married and the only thing that stands in our way is my parents. They are strict, church-going people and while they have no objections to my fiancé now, it is because I have never dared tell them.

Hughes Brewster was born in Dixon. His parents were prominent residents here. Attorney and Mrs. Edward Brewster, his grandfather was the late Senator Chas. Hughes, a prominent figure in northern Illinois politics.

Hughes Brewster graduated from the Dixon high school and also from Northwestern University in the class of 1930. He also studied several years in Germany. Hughes is an instructor of German at Stanford.

Founders' Day of Methodist W.F.M.S.

The Founder's Day meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist church was observed Thursday afternoon at the church with a large attendance. Among those present were invited guests from Ashton, Amboy, Harmon, Sterling First and Sterling Fourth street churches. At 1 o'clock all enjoyed the delicious luncheon prepared by the ladies.

With Mrs. B. R. Jacobsen at the piano, the meeting was opened by singing, "O For a Thousand Tongues," which is the missionary hymn for the year. The devotional theme was "The Way." The leader, Mrs. H. P. Buxton, brought out the thought that life is somewhat of a jungle at times, through which all must make their way with Christ, and leave something behind to point the way to greater and better things for those who follow after. "Lead Us, O Father" was sung as a prayer by Mrs. Thomas.

The history of mission work at Old Umtali in Rhodesia, Africa, was told by Mrs. A. I. Hardy. A quartet composed of Mesdames A. C. Bowers, B. R. Jacobsen, C. A. Thomas and Myrtle Jacobsen, favored us with a double number. They sang, "In Time of Roses," and "The End of a Sweet Day."

The guest speaker of the afternoon was the conference corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. W. Matheny of Chicago. These are some of the statements made: "Intelligence gives way whenever character gives way." "Civilization has failed in developing men of character." "Moral man is more important than intelligence." "The only solution is missionary passion for world problems." "Too few nations are governed by Christian influence." "Only one in four is interested in missions, the real purpose of the church."

She also explained the plans leading up to the 70th anniversary which will be celebrated in 1939. In the meantime, members are to work for 70,000 new members, 70,000 new subscribers to "The Friend," and 70,000 five dollar gifts, 1,000, seventy dollar gifts and 70,000 one thousand dollar gifts.

DAILY HEALTH

BY DR. IAGO GALDSTON

HEART FAILURE

Precisely what does heart failure mean? Directly it must mean failure of the heart to carry on its work, the propulsion of the blood through the body. But obviously heart failure may be the end result of a variety of abnormal conditions in the body.

The "failure" may be due to the weakness of the heart musculature. Or it may be due to the extreme obstacles which the heart encounters in its effort to keep the blood moving along the pathways of the arterial system.

A classical illustration of the first instance might be infection of the myocardium (the heart muscle), with consequent weakening and degeneration of the muscle fibres. Arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries with their consequent narrowing) is a typical illustration of the difficulties which the heart may encounter in its effort to keep the blood circulating.

A third consideration must be added; the work demands placed upon the heart. Two kinds of work demands are made. The heart must keep the blood circulating in order to sustain the vital functions of nutrition and waste removal. Again he heart is called upon to speed up blood circulation when the body is moved about and when energy is expended in physical labor. If the burden which movement and physical labor throw upon the heart is greater than the heart can sustain, heart failure may result.

For these reasons, individuals whose hearts are defective and threatening failure are urged to restrict their physical efforts and limit their food consumption.

The loss of unnecessary body weight reduces the burden placed upon the heart by the metabolic requirements of the body. A lighter chassis lessens the strain upon the engine.

Heart failure is not ordinarily a specific condition, such as pneumonia. It is a condition, due on the one hand to organic disability which may affect the heart proper (or the blood vessels (and other organs), and on the other hand to work demands made upon the heart.

Since the underlying organic disease frequently cannot be remedied heart failure may be avoided by lessening the demands made upon the heart.

scientific "justification" for this fish-equals-brain-food equation. Of course the brain, as all other parts of the body, is fed through the regular channels of blood and lymph (cerebro-spinal fluid) circulation. It isn't possible to expect delivery of a plentiful of fish labeled "For the brain only."

However, there is another form of food for the brain, properly so designated. Such a food is Winifred V. Richmond's recently published book, "Personality, Its Study and Hygiene."

Personality is a commonplace term used frequently and loosely in everyday conversation. Much, too, has been written and published on the subject and quite a bit of this is confused when not silly.

Propagandist thinkers have made special pleas for what they consider the crux of personality. Some have argued that personality is shaped by the endocrine glands or is determined by organic deficiencies. Others have stressed the infantile experiences as the main determining factors in personality. Unquestionably each of these affects personality, but not to the extent, nor with the exclusiveness claimed by their proponents.

Dr. Richmond present an integrated study of the forces which determine and mold personality. She also reviews competently the genesis of personality difficulties and disorders. This is a valuable contribution to mental hygiene.

Psychiatry, particularly mental hygiene, is no longer the exclusive concern of the specialist. The public has discovered the fascination of the subjects and their practical worth. Lagging, however, is the full appreciation of the hazard in half knowledge of and in the loose use of psychiatric terms and expressions.

Amateur psychiatry is more deadly than amateur surgery. In the latter the hurt is more immediately evident.

Such a well written, clear, and authoritative presentation of the subject as Dr. Richmond's "Personality" should go far to promote a better knowledge of and a greater respect for psychiatry and its subdivision, mental hygiene.

SHAWNEETOWN JOINS RANKS OF HOT TOWNS

Shawneetown, Ill., March 6—(AP)—Historic Shawneetown was a forsaken city today.

Nine of every ten of the community's families are in favor of abandoning the site to the destructive forces of recurring Ohio river flood waters—if money can be found to build a new town three miles farther inland on high ground.

Mayor William H. Brinkley, who trudged around levees and rowed a boat through the city's streets last week and found sentiment in favor of an exodus, planned to confer soon with Governor Horner concerning legislation to finance removal of the city.

"That the way they will all go," Mayor Brinkley commented on the removal upstate to Carmi of T. H. Boyd, holder of extensive farmlands and former Gallatin county treasurer.

"If the state or somebody else doesn't help us move the town, the town will move itself, family by family. But it will mean the end of the oldest living community in the state."

A century ago the proud center of the most populous county in Illinois country, Shawneetown now stands almost reduced to shambles. "We haven't any money," Mayor Brinkley said. "There aren't a half dozen families in town that can afford to get back on their feet without a lot of substantial help from somewhere."

Call At White House Today To Present Their Appeals

Washington, March 6—(AP)—A White House visit by six governors to plead against slicing works progress rolls appeared likely today to bring a restatement or clarification of the government's relief policy.

The governors of New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota requested the conference with President Roosevelt after declaring state and local governments already were hard put in trying to care for needy unemployed.

They said their states could not stand having this burden increased by cuts in WPA.

Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, has announced plans to reduce federal relief roll, by 550,000 before June 1, cutting the total from 2,150,000 to 1,600,000.

Hopkins told a House committee the contemplated reductions were based on continued recovery and assumed a good agricultural year that would make drought relief unnecessary.

Governors' Views

Asked for his views before going to the White House, Governor Philip LaFollette, Wisconsin Progressive, said the federal government should provide work for all on relief rolls and that none be dropped unless taken into private employment.

Governor Henry Horner, Illinois Democrat, said his state's burden is becoming unbearable.

"I want the federal government to provide for 35,000 employables now on relief and other employables who may go on relief," he said. "Such lessening of the load might make our relief burden more bearable."

"Another matter of concern is the reluctance of WPA employes to take private employment when offered, because if they lose such employment, they cannot get back on WPA without again going on the relief rolls. This should be corrected."

Latest Figures

Latest WPA figures, based on official reports and estimates, show state expenditures for relief have dropped from $26,610,000 in January, 1936, to $16,880,000 last September. During that period the federal government was turning over entirely to the state the burden of direct relief.

This was attributed by WPA officials to a shortage of public funds for relief in some states and in part to seasonal factors and outlays for social security, with the consequent transfer of some cases to that program.

Horner was accompanied by Leo Lyons, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, and John Casey, the governor's secretary.

After a preliminary conference at a hotel, the governors were called into session with Roosevelt.

U. S. CAN SAVE MONEY IF WAR ISN'T IN CARDS

If the average government could only find some way of letting its right hand know what its left hand
doeth, the world might have a far better chance of living in peace these days.

The other day, for example, Japanese and American officials gathered about the grave of Commodore Matthew Perry, in New York, and exchanged new vows
as to the eternal qualities of the friendship and harmony existing between America and Japan.

Japanese Ambassador Saito sent a telegram mentioning "the indestructibility of the traditional friendship." An official of the American State Department remarked that Japan and America have never been enemies and that the American people and government
"hope that the record thus established will never be impaired." And President Roosevelt, from afar, shed his blessing on the memorial services to the American seaman who brought Japan into the modern world.

Now all this sounds extremely fine, and might lead
one to believe that prospects for continued peace between the two nations were never better—if it were not that each of the governments involved supports a fighting force as well as a handshaking department, and that the fighters don't seem to know just what the handshakers are up to.

The Japanese have been spending millions on their navy lately. They have prepared a whole chain of Pacific islands for war uses. They have refused to be bound any longer by the limitations of the Washington naval treaty. And, somehow, it is impossible to escape the conclusion that, in doing these things, they are thinking principally of friendly old Uncle Sam across the water.

Similarly, America has been and still is spending vast sums on its fleet. The Hawaiian base is being made into a regular Gibraltar. There are rumors of air bases and the like in the Aleutian islands. And, once again, it is very hard to doubt that all this is being done with one eye on the friendly Japanese over beyond the Pacific.

In other words, these two governments seem to be playing the old game of talking peace and preparing to fight.

Either the peace talk is a lot of hokum which isn't meant to be taken seriously, or both nations are spending a lot of money that they might just as well be using for something else.

Before we go any farther, we would do well to find out which is the case. The ordinary American has no quarrel with the Japanese — indeed, he rather likes them. And if this talk about indestructible peace is to be taken seriously, he could save a good deal of money
on his naval bill.

Can't the two governments find some way of mak-

"HICK COPS"

A bleak future awaits Merle Vandembush, whom the Department of Justice terms "Public Rat No. 1." Captured after a lurid, bank-robbing career, he faces a long row of years behind bars.

That, in itself, is bad enough, but it may be something else he is contemplating more gloomily. Since a criminal's pride is notoriously sensitive, Vandembush
may be squirming in the humiliating knowledge that he,
a bold, bad man, was caught, not by grim G-men or stalwart city bluecoats, but by what he would probably describe derisively as "hick cops"—four men, the entire force of Armonk, N. Y.

For their splendid work, the four policemen have been congratulated by G-man Chief Hoover, the town council has voted them new overcoats and vacations with pay, and they may split a $1000 reward.

Yet this is far from being all they deserve, if they have taught desperadoes that the open road is no safe refuge from justice.

YOU BET YOUR LIFE

If a man were to bet $17,000,000 against $1 that he could toss a booklet into the air, and catch it as he falls, he certainly would be thought to be foolish. He probably would win, but the small gain would not be worth the tremendous risk.

By the same token, the pedestrian who risks all the remaining minutes of his life just to save a single minute by crossing the street recklessly, is an exceedingly foolish man.

In a booklet, "You Bet Your Life," that it has just issued, a prominent insurance company uses the above illustration, among others, to demonstrate the folly of gambling with your life.

And pedestrians, whether gamblers or not, will have to agree that it is a powerful argument against carelessness on the streets.

MORE EVIDENCE

Excerpts from his diary, published in his birth-month, reveal another of George Washington's many sides. Historians now point out that the Father of His Country loved nothing better than a bit of fishing.

It is pleasant to note, too, that Washington's diary of his fishing ventures jibe with his reputation for never telling a fib. In his notes, there is none of your typical Izaak Walton exaggeration.

On one day, for instance, he records, mournfully,
"caught little or no fish." On another—"no fish were to be caught today neither."

In a complaining note—"caught only about 30,000

last night." Note that he did not mention the 50 or so thousand that got away, or go into detail about the tremendous scraps put up by the 30,000. Apparently not even the exhilaration of angling could lure him from plain, matter-of-fact truth.

Girl Scout Birthday Poster

This is the composite portrait by Lawrence Wilbur of a Girl Scout, that familiar girl in green who, born on March 12, 1912, in Savannah, Ga., celebrates her 25th birthday this year in 4,366 American communities. There are now nearly four hundred thousand members in the Girl Scout organization which Mrs. Juliette Gordon Low founded so unobtrusively a quarter century ago. Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt is honorary president of the Girl Scouts, and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, who joined the movement in 1917, is national president.

Good housekeepers; active citizens; fun-loving girls—that's what Girl Scouting develops. Support Girl Scouting in this 25th anniversary year.

The following is a thumbnail history of the Girl Scouts:

In 1912 the first Girl Scout troop
was established in Savannah, Ga., by Juliette Low, who brought the idea from England where she had worked with the Girl Guides. In 1913 the movement began to expand, under the leadership and constant inspiration of Mrs. Low, and in 1916 a national headquarters
was established in New York.

In 1919 the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts was formed, which laid the cornerstone of international sisterhood in the movement.

In 1920 the Girl Scouts amplified and modified their program in several ways. The Scout uniform, which had first been dark blue like that of the British Girl Guides and then, under the influence of the war, khaki, was changed to its present gray-green. The handbook was rewritten, with new emphasis on the educational side of scouting, and the organization entered a new period of growth.

In 1926 the two national Girl Scout camps on the site of Horace Greeley's farm in Braintree Manor,
New York, were completed in time for the Girls to welcome a World Camp, with delegates from thirty-two member countries. Also in 1926 the Brownie program for girls between seven and ten was given official recognition in the Girl Scout handbook.

In 1927 the Girl Scouts lost their founder, Juliette Low. Her loss was deeply felt by the whole organization.

1934 saw two important developments in the Girl Scout program.
One was the official launching of the Mariner program for older girls who liked to sail. The second, and more important, was the institution of a committee to study the aims and methods of Girl Scouting, with a view to making recommendations

for the improvement of the method
and the more effective accomplishment of the aims, if such recommendations were placed before the 1936 convention of the Girl Scouts, and the national organization is already acting upon them.

1937 the Girl Scouts achieve the quarter century mark. Again Camps Mack and Andree in Briarcliff Manor will be the scene of a World Encampment. The delegates will be welcomed by the National Board, headed by Mrs. Herbert Hoover by the National Staff, headed by Mrs. Paul Rittenhouse and by outstanding Girl Scouts and their leaders from all the states in the Union. Together they will celebrate the Twenty-fifth anniversary and lay the ground work for the next twenty-five years.

Resume of Girl Scout activities
during February:

Troop I
February meetings have been devoted to work on First Aid, Signalling and Badge work. The girls are also busy with plans for the Girl Scout Anniversary Week, efforts being made to have the entire troop in complete uniform by Mar.
12th. On February 10th, Mary Louise Poole told an interesting story about Juliette Low and the founding of Girl Scouting in America. Work was begun on the World Knowledge Badge in observance of International month.

On Feb. 17th, the patrol leaders were presented with the Patrol Leaders Chevrons, and the troop
treasurer, Mary Marth, and troop scribe, Lois Fitzsimmons with the badges of their office. The following are the patrol leaders, Sue Bryant, Janet Countryman, Mary Mc-Kinney, and Beryl Means. They in turn presented their assistants with the Assistant Patrol Leaders Chevrons.

Mrs. H. C. Warner was present on Feb. 25th, to discuss the work on the World Knowledge badge.

Visitors to Troop I this past month have been Mrs. Charles Roundy, Mrs. Frank Hoyle, and Miss Marie Kelly.

Saturday, Feb. 27, the troop held a very successful bake sale at the Buehler market. The girls extend their thanks to all who helped make the day a success, and to the management of the Buehler market
for its courtesy and cooperation.

Troop II
On Feb. 15th, troop 2 was organized. The patrols were formed according to school grades. Patrol I,
Seventh grade, Ellen Kuhn Patrol Leader, Janet Wimpelberg second,
Patrol 2 sixth grade, Peggy Rhoades Patrol leader, and Katherine Reynolds second, Patrol 3 fifth grade, Doris Winters temporary patrol leader, and Dorothy Gorham second.
The troop treasurer is Marilyn Hoyle.

Troop II has a new Captain, Mrs.
George Smith, and assisting her is Miss Helen Krug.

Troop II is off to a new start,
and are planning on doing a great deal of work.

These notes are submitted by Jeanne Smith, Scribe.

Troop VII has been very active,
one patrol having had a patrol dinner at the home of Jean Blocher Monday evening. Table setting, cooking and bedmaking requirements for the second class badge, were passed by the members of this patrol.

The following Patrol Leaders were awarded their patrol leaders badges, Mary Louise Slothower, Patricia Moore and Christine Brown.
Jean Blocher awarded scribe, and Sylvia Heckman treasurer. Following this ceremony two members of the troop committee served refreshments Mrs. Slothower and Mrs. J. J. McCoy.

Observation hikes, mapsketching,
health and signalling have filled
the troop program. The new assistant with Troop VII is Mrs.
Lloyd Eline.

Troop VIII
Loveland troop, have been more than busy. Two of their meetings during February were spent at the home of their leader, Hazel Miller, making quilts for the American Legion to send to the flood area.

A troop supper was cooked and served by the hostess group, working on their hostess badge. Mrs.

Harry Edwards examiner for that badge was guest at this affair.

Troop VIII has a new assistant also, Mrs. K. A. Rubey.

Betty Brainerd, Scribe.
Brownie Resume Pack I & II
Feb. 4, A Major Bowes Amateur program was held and all the Brownies had complete charge of this program. On the 11th, a Valentine meeting was held, and a Brownie story read. A new game
"Sandy land" was played but far from perfect (says Brown Owl). On the 18th a George Washington meeting was held. Each Brownie answered roll call by telling something about George Washington.
Hatchets with peppermint stick and paper blades were made.

The local Scout director was a guest.

Feb. 25th was the last meeting for new Tweenies to come into Brownies, and eight new Tweenies were taken in.

Plea For Button

A plea to local World War veterans to let the American Legion membership blue and gold lapel button symbolize their pride in their service to their country in its time of need, was made today by E. N. Bower, commander of the post, to wind up the post's membership drive. The Legion button he pointed out, is a public identification of a patriot. Commander Bower gave out the following statement:

"Is there any veteran of the World War so poor in spirit and patriotism that he is not proud of the part he played in the greatest of all military struggles since history began? Have not our veterans a justified pride in our service? If any man were to assert that we had not played our part as men and Americans, how quickly we resent it?"

"The American Legion offers for you, Comrade, to testify to the world of your loyalty in war and your determination to give continued service in peace. The lapel button of the Legion is a notice to all that you failed not when your country called, and that you still subscribe to the patriotism and Americanism for which the Legion stands."

"Without the Legion button, the service man has no method of differentiating himself from the thousands who did not go. He may have served but no one knows it. And the world finds it easy and convenient to forget."

"With the Legion button, you quietly, but effectively identify yourself as one of America's veterans and as an active participant in the work of a patriotic society which is dedicated to the preservation of American principles. You place yourself as both a wartime and peace-time patriot and true American."

"Be proud that you can join the American Legion. Hundreds of thousands of young men would rejoice indeed if their lives could be made over that the Legion might be open to them. Those who did serve but who have not up to now

Waitresses Striking Happy Pose

Forty waitresses in a Detroit restaurant hadn't lost a bit of enthusiasm for their sidown strike when this picture was taken of them in conference with the management. The girls struck during the noon hour and those in another cafe immediately followed suit. Customers went unfed or waited on themselves. Food cooled unheeded in the kitchen. Unpaid checks were numerous. The waitresses want more pay, shorter hours.

Garrison School

By Lois B. Heckman

February has brought further improvement in attendance, the average being 10.7 per cent for the 11 pupils attending.

On Feb. 10, Ted Hintz came to put up our playground equipment which we have enjoyed.

Friday, Feb. 12, we had a Valentine party which was also in honor of Roger Wakeley's birthday.

His sister Charlene had charge of the contests and program which pertained to Washington and Lincoln. Everyone enjoyed the birthday cake and refreshments.

On Feb. 19, we had our monthly weighing day.

More books were secured this month from the Dixon public library.

For picture study hour we had Sir Edwin Landseer's, "Shoeing the Bay Mare." Our new song was "Patty and Her Penny," while the blackboard poem was entitled, February.

Former graduates who visited during the month were Avis Heckman, Dwight Hintz, Helen and Marvin Mundorff, Little Marion Lowry, also visited us.

On Thursday, Feb. 25, the district met at the school house in the evening for the purpose of formalizing a parent organization and to honor the Mundorff family who were leaving our district. Every school child's home was represented, the board of directors and other families of the district, to co-operate, enjoy the games, community singing, readings, business meetings, refreshments and social hour which took place during the evening.

Mrs. Raymond Hodges presided as chairman for the business meeting at which time the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. William Bennett; vice president, Theodore Hintz; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Raymond Hodges. Our next meeting will be Friday evening, March 26.

We ask you to keep this date in mind and to be with us, at which time a program will be given. We appreciate the hearty co-operation given at our first gathering and hope to have a good attendance at future times.

Friday, Feb. 26, Marilyn Mubdorff, one of our first graders, left our school, as she is moving to another community. We miss her and shall look forward to the time when she can visit us in the future.

The seventh grade has completed their Eskimo notebooks. The school has been doing supplementary reading about the Eskimos and their mode of living.

Sterling, Prophetstown Play For Cage Title

STERLING IS EASY VICTOR; SEMI-FINALS

Lee Center Battles Stubbornly But Is Outclassed

Sterling Township high's favored quintet, apparently impressed by Lee Center's performance against Rock Falls took no chances Friday night, and soundly thrashed the G. R. V. C. entrant in the regional basketball meet here 38 to 17 to move into the finals with Prophetstown tonight.

This evening in the consolation game at 7:30 P. M. Lee Center will meet Amboy and at 8:30 P. M. the championship game will be played between Sterling and Prophetstown followed by the traditional awarding of trophies to winner, runner-up and most sportsman-like team in the tournament.

Lee Center fought stubbornly right from the opening whistle. The Lee county representatives frequently spoiled some of Township's best out-shots, and had possession of the ball their share of the time. However it was evident Lee Center lacked the polish and knowledge of all the tricks of the trade, and that they were badly outclassed by the N. C. I. conference champs.

Sterling Ahead 8-1

In the first quarter Sterling built up an 8 to 1 lead. Mortensen was fouled by Longabaugh and gave Lee Center its first point after Andrews and Longabaugh had scored for Sterling.

In the second quarter Lee Center, though unable to even get a good shot at the hoop from the field, continued to keep their tries via the free throw line good 1000 per cent adding a couple more of these in as many opportunities before half time.

Sterling held a convincing 13 to 3 half-time lead and rolled this up to 25-8 in the third frame. In the last quarter however Lee Center presented a fairly strong offense and was outscored by Sterling only four points, 13 to 9. Foster, Lee Center, ace forward dipped in all five of his points in the last half as did his center mate, White, both of these boys attaining high score honors for the villagers. Longabaugh and Stabler with ten points each contributed to Sterling's attack.

Danville, Last Year's State Tourney Runner Up Is Out

Chicago, March 6.—(AP)—Illinois prep regional basketball championships will be determined in 55 centers tonight, and missing from the prep title picture will be several teams which for several seasons have figured in the final state title scramble.

Danville, runner-up to Decatur for the state championship last season, went out of the running at Westville last night, dropping a 32 to 28 decision to Allerton. Thornton high of Harvey, champion in 1933 and finalist in 1934 and 1935, was whipped by Chicago Heights, 26 to 19.

Several teams, however, showed they will put in strong bids for regional honors tonight and then shoot at sectional and final victories later in the month. Frankie Parker Goes After Davis Cup Berth In '37

New York, March 5.—(AP)—Frankie Parker, who would like to parlay a No. 2 national ranking and the national indoor tennis championship into a Davis Cup berth this summer, goes after the latter goal today in the tournament finals against Frank J. Bowden of New York.

Parker already has his No. 2 ranking and he appears the odds-on choice to take the indoor championship.

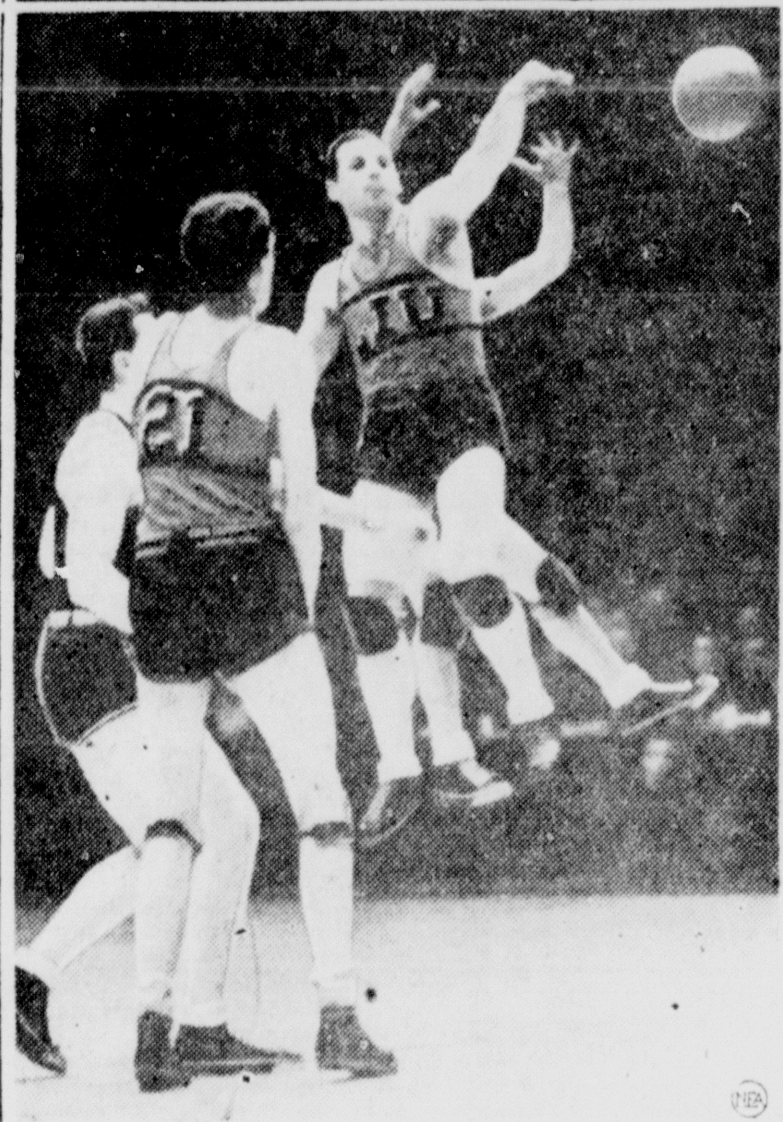

Parker reached the final yesterday with a surprisingly easy victory over the highly-regarded David Jones one time Columbia University player, and more recently a competitor in British net affairs. Bowden was a semi-final surprise winner. He upset Walter Senior of San Francisco in straight sets.

Havana.—With his eye on the coming "Grapefruit League" games, particularly those with the St. Louis Cardinals, Manager Bill Terry begins trotting his pitching mainstays into action today. He will throw Hal Schumacher, Cliff Melton and Harry Gumbert, all fighting for regular berths, against Havana tomorrow.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—The new-reel cameramen have been giving the New York Yankees so much attention that folks are beginning to think they're part of the Yankees' squad.

Clearwater, Fla.—They're thinking of giving the Brooklyn Dodgers' secretary, John Gorman, a medal. He talked salary with United Baseboard Joe Stripp for just two hours, and came up with an okay from the infirmary.

Pasadena.—Manager Jimmy Dykes says White Sox hurlers will be ready to pitch to outfielders and infielders, when the latter arrive in camp Tuesday.

Chicago.—If the Chicago Cubs eat a lot of ham and eggs on their trip to spring camp at Catalina Island, maybe it will be because they don't want to hurt the boss' feelings. Manager Charlie Grimm will have his own "home grown" ham and eggs, from his Missouri farm, on board the special which will start west tomorrow night.

Mexico City.—A long batting drill prepared the Philadelphia Athletics for a busy week end of exhibition baseball games with Mexican teams.

Orlando, Fla.—Owner Clark Griffith said today the Washington Senators "very likely" would have finished second last fall, if Catcher Cliff Bolton hadn't left the team before the season ended. Bolton is back with the team, but is asking the $350 bonus he didn't get after his run-out.

Daytona Beach, Fla.—It's "play ball" for the Cardinals today in the first practice game of the season. The squad has been divided into two teams for contests today and Sunday.

Tampa, Fla.—Manager Charley Gressen of the Cincinnati Reds tore down today in efforts to develop the "big punch" absent at times from last year's team.

New Orleans.—Mel Harder is the only Cleveland Indian pitcher holding down in training camp workouts. Bothered by a sore arm late last season, he said while his arm is in good shape he prefers to build it up gradually.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—President Bob Quinn was born in Ohio but he insists he will be from Missouri today when he inspects his Boston Bees' pitching staff for the first time. Bill McKechnie assured Quinn last night that the collection of hurlers is the best since he joined the club.

Boston.—With most of the Red Soxers in Florida, six of them holdouts, today's getaway party will be the smallest in the club's history. Traveling Secretary Phil Troy will have but one player with him, Ted Olson, recent Dartmouth pitcher, when he enroute for Saratoga. They will be joined at Philadelphia by Bob Grove and Coach Bing Miller and by Herb Pennock, another coach, at Wilmington, Del.

Chicago.—The Chicago Cubs eat a lot of ham and eggs on their trip to spring camp at Catalina Island, maybe it will be because they don't want to hurt the boss' feelings. ILLINI, GOPHERS REACH FOR TITLE

Big Ten Championship To Be Decided In Tonight's Games

Chicago, March 6.—(AP)—The Big Ten basketball championship race, one of the most hotly contested in recent years, will be decided tonight, with two second division clubs playing leading parts in the campaign's finale.

Illinois and Minnesota, each tied for the lead with nine victories and two defeats, oppose Northwestern and Chicago, respectively, with the other battle featuring Michigan and Wisconsin, both of which are out of the running.

Illinois, on the records, faces the most severe test. The Wildcats winners of two of their last three games and only whipped by Minnesota in overtime, will have the advantage of playing on their home court. One of Illinois' two defeats was at the hands of Northwestern.

Chicago will make an effort to win one game out of 12 starts this season and break its jinx of losing every conference tilt in three campaigns. In an early season engagement the Gophers whipped the Maroons.

PROGRESS FISH CULTURE

By Cal Johnson

Work confined to fish culture has accomplished great strides in the United States since its introduction during the year 1853. All the early operations of artificial breeding were limited to the fishes of the salmon family, chiefly the Atlantic salmon, and several kinds of trout.

It was natural that attention should first be attracted to such species. The salmon and trout have long been held in high esteem by American anglers and perhaps more is known today regarding their habits and means of artificial propagation than any one other species of game fish.

Among the fish successfully propagated in the United States are Pacific, Atlantic and landlocked salmon, all species of lake and brook trout, whitefish and lake herring, grayling black bass, walleyed pike (pike-perch), muskellunge, various species of panfish, smelts, shad, mackerel, cod, haddock, pollock, tomcod, flatfish, sand dab, flounder, golden ide, sturgeon, sturgeon, tau-tog, cunner, soup, sea bass, sea-teague, sheephead, sea herring and alewife.

Listed among the economic invertebrates now propagated successfully are lobsters, oysters, clams, mussels, sponges, the latter propagated from cuttings, like some plants.

Fish culture has passed out of the stage of experiment into the realm of great operations, upon which depend commercial interests, remunerative private enterprises and the sportsman angler. State operated fish hatcheries are doing much to keep the waters well stocked with game fish and there is every reason to believe that as time progresses our knowledge of aquatic life will be enlarged even greater, which will help wonderfully in solving some of the problems that now confront many lakes and streams that are gradually becoming fished out or otherwise depleted of their piscatorial life.

The Riddle of Muskellunge Propagation

The famous northwoods brawler, the muskellunge, has apparently submitted to artificial propagation with marked success. Years of research work and experimenting was necessary before any real degree of success was announced by conservation authorities. However, it seems that the results of past experiments are beginning to bear fruit, especially in Wisconsin.

About six years ago experiments were inaugurated at the Woodruff hatchery in the Badger state in establishing rearing ponds for muskies. It was found that raising muskellunge in a rearing pond was a different matter from the comparatively easy job of rearing trout in artificial ponds.

The first year five large ponds were prepared for the baby muskies by draining and clearing them not only of fish but of all undesirable vegetation. Every effort was made to have the ponds perfectly clear when the water was raised and the fish placed in them.

The first year about 20,000 muskellunge fry were placed in the five ponds—probably about 4,000 in each pond. Care was taken to keep predatory birds away, and experiments were made to secure the right kind of food for the young fish. The food problem presented the greatest difficulty, as the muskellunge would not eat the kinds of food other fish thrive on when kept in rearing fish ponds. Ground liver and other common fish foods were spurned entirely by these aristocratic fish, and it was necessary to gather crustacea from near-by lakes, certain kinds of which the muskies like very much.

It took the entire time of two men to scour the country for food for these growing fish. As soon as the lunge were large enough to eat other fish, extra efforts were expended to get supplies of rough fish minnows and to secure enough of them to discourage any cannibalistic tendency that might develop.

But, in spite of all this work and care, only 110 muskie fingerlings resulted from the 20,000 fry put in the ponds. However, even this small number is not discouraging, compared with the record of another state interested in muskellunge propagation, which, after several months' effort, secured only seven fish out of more than 30,000 fry.

Since these early experiments, Wisconsin has succeeded in rearing as many as 1,700 muskellunge in one season, the fish being eight to ten inches in length before liberation. The work, however, is still in a delicate stage. More progress has been made in the actual hatching process, and the point has been reached where approximately half a million muskies are hatched every year in the Badger state, most of which are planted as fry in the lakes from which the parent fish are taken. With continued study, most of the problems attendant upon the rearing of muskellunge in holding ponds will be solved.

PROPHET FIVE GALLOPS OVER AMBOY 38 TO 9

Seeks Upset Tonight Over Sterling In Title Contest

Prophetstown's speedy cagers smothered Amboy in the semi-finals of the basketball tournament here Friday night 38 to 9, and moved in to the finals tonight against Sterling.

The Prophets didn't waste any time getting started on their quest for a final berth and led by Simester, who scored 16 points during the contest, they counted six points while holding Amboy scoreless the first quarter.

Lynch Breaks Ice

Lynch broke the ice for the Scarletlets at the onset of the second period, but Amboy's passing was ragged and the Scarletlets apparently were no match for the clever guards of Prophetstown. Randall and Morath mugged up every dribbling Amboy forward and time and again tied the Scarletlets up underneath the hoop.

At half time with Prophetstown leading 14 to 5 it was apparent Amboy would have to do something drastic to win the contest. The Scarletlets had miserable luck on some of the easiest set-up shots so were not favored even in this respect. Amboy was held to only two points, both free throws, in the third period, and Prophetstown built up a safe 23 to 7 advantage. In the last quarter the Prophets ran wild outscoring Amboy 15 to 2.

News of Interest to Community Farmers

MAU APPEALS FOR EXTENDED FLOOD HELP

Four Thousand Farmers in Stricken Areas in Need

J. E. Mau, president of Lee County Farm Bureau, through a letter to his directors, has requested them to form committees in each township to solicit for the needs of the 4000 farmers who have been found in want in the flood area. The recent survey made by the I. A. A. Committee reveals that White county has 27% of its area flooded and 860 farmers seriously affected; Gallatin county with 80% flooded with 700 farmers affected; Saline county with 40% flooded with 500 farmers affected; Massac county, 33% flooded with 350 farmers affected; Pulaski-Alexander counties, 55% flooded with 1000 farmers affected; Pope-Hardin counties, 10% with 210 farmers affected; Hamilton county 7% flooded with 75 farmers affected and Johnson county 2% flooded with 30 farmers affected.

The area inundated represents the best agricultural land of the counties upon which was stored the principal feed and roughage supplies. There will be very little salvage to this feed when the water recedes. It is believed that the growing wheat has been entirely destroyed. There was considerable loss to poultry and livestock. Many buildings are badly damaged and in some instances they were swept away entirely. Rehabilitation costs of these farmers will be heavy. With rehabilitation of buildings, machinery and equipment an immediate requirement and spring seeding only thirty days away in that territory, one can realize the problem that confronts those stricken farmers.

Mr. Mau believes that the county should now organize and make a strong plea for such contributions as can be made by the farmers. Money, which we believe is the easiest way to carry on this solicitation, as it is somewhat cumbersome to send feed and supplies of that type. Therefore, cash contributions would be much better. If a farmer is donating five or ten bushels of corn, if he will take that to the elevator and send the check to his township committee, and township committee to the Farm Bureau, and the Farm Bureau will send it to the I. A. A. Flood Relief. This will facilitate the handling of supplies much better than if various grains were dumped into cars and sent to the flood area. It is suggested by Mr. Mau that the Farm Bureau director as chairman, his vice-director and chairman of the Soil Conservation Committee, act as a committee of three to pick out men to solicit all the farmers in their territory.

Lee County Responded Once Before. Lee county, during the cyclone a few years ago, responded very well with their cash contributions for the relief of farmers in the cyclone area. We feel sure that Lee county farmers have been waiting for the chance to help out the fellow farmers in the southern flooded area.

A total of 4,498,710 dozen eggs have been bought by the AAA in its emergency surplus removal program, put into effect January 15 to prevent a continuation in the abnormally sharp decline in winter farm egg prices resulting from extremely mild winter weather conditions according to word received by the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

4-H CLUBBERS USUALLY GO ON TO COLLEGES

Urbana, Ill., March 6—Illinois' 28,025 farm boys and girls who are learning better farming and home-making practices as members of 4-H clubs are also creating a desire to obtain additional scholastic training, according to E. I. Pilchard and Miss Mary A. McKee, extension specialists in junior club work, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Of the 1231 students enrolled in the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, during the first semester of the present school year, 585 or more than 45 per cent are former 4-H club members, they explain.

Three hundred eighty-six of the 807 students enrolled in the agricultural courses are former 4-H club members, and 199 of the 474 students enrolled in home economics courses are former club members.

In the percentage of students in the agricultural college who were former club members, Illinois ranks second in the list of 12 states reporting. Nebraska is in the lead with a rating of 46 per cent. Illinois boasts an enrollment of 250 in its college 4-H club.

For the 12 states as a whole, of the 12,375 students enrolled in agriculture and home economics, 4250 or 33.8 per cent were former club members.

A definite upward trend is indicated by annual summaries kept by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Data for the first summary were compiled for the college year, 1927-28. At that time the reports indicated that there were 731 former 4-H club members enrolled as students as compared with the 4250 reported for the present year—a gain of 569 per cent.

Local 4-H club activities are sponsored in Illinois by the extension service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, in co-operation with farm and home advisers and local club leaders.

"The goal of 4-H club work is not attendance at a college or university, but, through its program, 4-H club work does interest large numbers in continuing their education," Pilchard said.

LEE ALLOTTED SOIL DEPLETING, AND CORN ACRES

292,625 of Former And 162,839 Of The Latter

The County Soil Depleting Base of 292,625 Soil Depleting acres represents the number of acres which the county committee may allot to the townships in the county. The township committees will then allot the acres given to that township to the farmers in their townships. The total individual Soil Depleting bases in the county can not exceed the 292,625 acres given to the county. A Soil Depleting base is given each farm in the county and in order to earn benefit payments the operator of the farm must decrease his soil depleting crops below the base given that farm. He can get paid for reducing as much as fifteen per cent of his base, but will be paid on the number of acres he has reduced below his base, if that acreage is not more than 15 per cent of the base. Example: A farm which has a base of one hundred acres can be paid on, from one tenth of an acre to fifteen acres if he reduces his soil depleting crops that amount. He could not get paid on more than fifteen acres as more than 15 acres would be more than 15 per cent of his base. This is known as diversion payment. If the acres which were taken from soil depleting crops were put into conserving crops, conversion payment would also be made.

A farm may also earn soil building payments and these are earned by seeding adapted seed, by applying lime or phosphate. However, the amount which may be earned by liming and seeding is limited by the soil building allowance. A producer should contact his township committee and find out how much he can earn.

The directors will meet in the office of the Association Monday and assign township bases. The township committees will start immediately to assign individual farm bases. When these have been approved by the state office the township committees will call upon each farmer and explain his soil depleting base and corn limit to him.

"Better Balanced Farming" is the name of a new leaflet explaining the 1937 Agricultural Conservation Program which may be obtained from the local farm adviser or by writing the extension service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

COLD STORAGE LOCKERS MUST BE RENTED NOW

110 New Lockers Are Ordered For Lee County Plant

The last chance for Farm Bureau members in Lee county, until a new plant is erected to obtain cold storage lockers will be within the next two weeks or more. A new order for 110 lockers has been placed with the Master Locker Company at Sioux City, Iowa, where the lockers were purchased by the plant when they opened. These additional lockers will bring the capacity of the plant up to 320, which is the total amount of lockers that can go into the plant. If you have not a cold storage locker and wish to get one you had better send in your check for $10 and sign an application for a locker as soon as the 110 lockers are filled there will be no more available until a new plant will be built somewhere in the country. At the present time only about 95 lockers are available, 15 lockers have been spoken for already.

All Products Must Be Inspected. At the last board of directors meeting the regulation was put on the books that all products which are brought into the plant for storage in lockers must first be submitted to the plant manager for inspection and preparation for storage. This includes wrapping and freezing, as all the products must be sharp frozen before being placed in the locker. This is necessary because of state regulations and for the protection of the other patrons.

Cut Up Pork Products Hard to Handle. Another difficulty which is encountered is that of patrons cutting up of pork products before they bring them into the plant. Some might think this is a saving but those associated closely with the plant find that it causes a great deal of inconvenience. No suitable arrangements were made in the construction of the plant to handle cut up meat in the chill room, so when pork products that have been cut up come in in baskets it is very hard to handle this type of meat. It is also dangerous for farmers bringing in cut up meat to place to put warm meat side by side. It takes only a few hours for pork products to start souring. It is preferable from the standpoint of the plant management and also from the financial standpoint to bring in the carcass without cutting, only splitting through the center. In this manner it can be placed in the chill room immediately on hooks without causing much inconvenience. Mr. Clayton Elliott, the plant manager, also requested that farmer patrons call before they bring in meat. At the present time the meat rail outside of the boxes is filled with beef and pork both, and it is impossible to get any more in the chill room. While this doesn't cause a great deal of inconvenience in cold weather, it will have to be placed in the chill room, and the plant is not large enough to handle such a large volume of meats as is now coming in. As time goes on, I think people will be butchering more often and less at one butchering time.

Service Well Appreciated. We have many instances where the service in the Cold Storage plant is very well appreciated by those who are using it. We have one instance of Mr. George Kofoed, who during the recent slippery weather, lost an animal by breaking its leg. He immediately slaughtered this animal and brought it into the cold storage plant, thereby saving him considerable in dollars and cents. Another farmer, moving into this territory from Bureau county, wrote up and requested a box so that as soon as he moves in here, he might have it to put his meat products in. These are only two of the many, many reports that we are receiving from our farmer patrons.

The cutting demonstration began at 1:30 promptly and was held in the High School Gymnasium.

SEES POULTRY SEASON GOOD DURING 1937

Urbana, Ill., March 6—Efficient Illinois poultrymen may well expect 1937 to be a fairly good poultry season, particularly the latter part of the year, according to H. H. Alp, extension poultryman, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Right now, however, the poultry meat situation does not look as encouraging as the egg picture, he said. To illustrate, he cited the storage holdings of poultry in 26 cities in January amounting to 137 million pounds as compared with 80 million pounds in January of 1936.

"All in all there is little need for excitement over the outlook," Alp said. "The main thing will be to stand pat on established and proved practices and to eliminate all unnecessary expense. One big expense item in the past has been sick and parasite-infested pullets. The average flock owner can well afford to give more time to disease prevention programs through strict sanitary measures in brooding and rearing practices."

A better consumer demand situation will probably keep egg prices in the first half of 1937 above those of a year earlier, is the belief expressed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This agency does not anticipate any increase in hatchings this spring.

One effect of a high or unfavorable feed-egg ratio in the winter is unchanged or reduced hatchings the following spring, it is pointed out. Some evidence of a reduction is indicated in the 12 per cent decrease in saleable chicks hatched in commercial hatcheries in winter broiler producing areas during November of last year as compared with November of 1935.

An increase in the demand for sexed chickens is anticipated this spring. If, as a result, cockerels can be bought cheap, they may be made to pay out.

FRUIT SCHOOL AT AMBOY, MARCH 10

New Facts And Ideas To Be Featured At Growers' Class

With prospects for higher average fruit prices during the next few seasons than they had for the past five years, fruit growers in Lee county will meet in a one-day school to be held in Amboy March 10. New facts and ideas aimed to help growers make the most of their more favorable outlook will be featured on the program. The school is being held by the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois in co-operation with Farm Adviser Yale.

Fruit prices promise to be higher during the next few years because of the expected increase in consumer buying power, it was explained. On the other hand, higher prices may not materialize if citrus fruits should be cheaper. Also an abnormally large crop of any deciduous fruit would lower prices for that fruit.

V. W. Kelley, horticultural extension specialist of the agricultural college, and L. H. Shropshire, assistant entomologist of the Illinois State Natural History Survey, will both be at the school. The former will discuss various growing and marketing problems, while the latter will report on the insect situation and discuss the 1937 spray program.

HOG OUTLOOK IS GOOD PRICE THROUGH 1937

Farmers Marketing Early To Save Their Feed

Heavy receipts of hogs at the principal markets are the result of farmers marketing early to save feed and are not an indication that there are too many hogs in the country, according to E. T. Robbins, livestock extension specialist, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Evidence of this fact is found in the large number of light weight hogs being sent to market. Estimates place the number of hogs in the country at 30 per cent below normal.

The fall pig crop and the prospective spring pig crop seem to be reduced below the previous season in each case. At the same time the demand for hog products is good, and there is a comparatively small supply of hog products in storage.

Hogs which are fed economically this winter and sold at suitable weights should pay well for the feed they eat, Robbins believes. Fall pigs marketed early next spring should find a good market. Spring pigs are pushed from the start and sold in the early fall should sell at high prices.

The present high price of corn will discourage expansion in hog numbers, it is pointed out in the agricultural outlook prepared by the agriculture college.

Although a good corn crop in 1937 would stimulate hog production, an increase in hog numbers can not manifest itself before the fall pig crop of 1937 is ready for market.

Market prices of hogs in 1937 will probably remain at least as high as during 1936. The prospective scarcity of slaughter hogs from July to September will doubtless push the price to the year's peak during that period.

CASE CO. OPENS MOLINE BRANCH SALES OFFICE

History of Company and Grand Detour Co. Recounted

Moline, March 6—Opening of a new branch sales office by the J. I. Case company in the Rock Island Plow company property recently purchased by the farm implement concern at Second avenue and Sixth street, Rock Island, was announced today. At the new sales office, representative machines of the seventy-seven farm implements made by the Case organization will be on a display floor. One of the important items is the new Case centennial plow, built to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the making of the first steel plow at Grand Detour. The Grand Detour plow division at Dixon now is a unit of the Case organization.

The Case company is inviting former customers of the Rock Island Plow company, as well as Case customers and prospective customers, to visit the new show floor and inspect the Case line. Arrangements have been made to carry extensive stocks of repairs for both Case and Rock Island machinery.

Historic Company. Entering this territory, the Case company brings an organization which has one of the oldest and most historic backgrounds in the entire farm machinery industry. The original Case company of Racine, Wis., was established in 1842, nearly a century ago, by Jerome I. Case.

Jerome Case, in 1842, only 23 years old, came west, with six small threshing machines, bought on credit. He sold five of the six, after arriving in Wisconsin, where settlers were clamoring for threshers.

The sixth he kept for custom and experimental purposes, for the dream of making a better threshing machine had come to him. He first had his shop in the western part of Racine county, but in 1844 he opened a shop in Racine and started building threshers in earnest.

From this shop grew the largest plant of its kind in the world. The Case company has many firsts in its historic background. It was the first to introduce the steel threshing machine in 1894. Case was early in the combine field, with a successful model 1923.

Applies Steam to Farming. Case was the first to apply steam to agriculture. In 1870 the Case portable steam engine was belted to the thrasher and Case engines won medals at the Philadelphia centennial fair in 1876 and the Paris world's fair in 1878. Case engine No. 1 now is in the Ford agricultural museum in Detroit.

In 1892 the first gas tractor was run out of the experimental department of the Case company at Racine.

Grand Detour Growing. While the Case company was becoming established, another historic plant also was growing—the Grand Detour-Plow company at Dixon. Major Leonard Andrus, who came from Vermont and started a settlement at Grand Detour, aided in establishing the first plow factory, after the first steel plow was made of an old saw blade. The company thrived and prospered, and in July, 1919, it was acquired by the Case company.

On Aug. 1, 1928, Case acquired the Emerson-Brantingham plant at Rockford, with its line of farm machines, and thereafter a complete line of implements and machinery carrying the Eagle trade mark of Case was offered. The Emerson-Brantingham company, now the Rockford works of the Case company, was founded in 1852. The latest addition to the Case company was the purchase, on Feb. 1, of the Rock Island Plow company.

One of the important contributions of the Emerson-Brantingham company was the foot-lift riding plow, first step away from the old method of raising and lowering plow bottoms by hand levers.

CASE CO. OPENS MOLINE BRANCH SALES OFFICE

History of Company and Grand Detour Co. Recounted

Moline, March 6—Opening of a new branch sales office by the J. I. Case company in the Rock Island Plow company property recently purchased by the farm implement concern at Second avenue and Sixth street, Rock Island, was announced today. At the new sales office, representative machines of the seventy-seven farm implements made by the Case organization will be on a display floor. One of the important items is the new Case centennial plow, built to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the making of the first steel plow at Grand Detour. The Grand Detour plow division at Dixon now is a unit of the Case organization.

The Case company is inviting former customers of the Rock Island Plow company, as well as Case customers and prospective customers, to visit the new show floor and inspect the Case line. Arrangements have been made to carry extensive stocks of repairs for both Case and Rock Island machinery.

Historic Company. Entering this territory, the Case company brings an organization which has one of the oldest and most historic backgrounds in the entire farm machinery industry. The original Case company of Racine, Wis., was established in 1842, nearly a century ago, by Jerome I. Case.

Jerome Case, in 1842, only 23 years old, came west, with six small threshing machines, bought on credit. He sold five of the six, after arriving in Wisconsin, where settlers were clamoring for threshers.

The sixth he kept for custom and experimental purposes, for the dream of making a better threshing machine had come to him. He first had his shop in the western part of Racine county, but in 1844 he opened a shop in Racine and started building threshers in earnest.

From this shop grew the largest plant of its kind in the world. The Case company has many firsts in its historic background. It was the first to introduce the steel threshing machine in 1894. Case was early in the combine field, with a successful model 1923.

Applies Steam to Farming. Case was the first to apply steam to agriculture. In 1870 the Case portable steam engine was belted to the thrasher and Case engines won medals at the Philadelphia centennial fair in 1876 and the Paris world's fair in 1878. Case engine No. 1 now is in the Ford agricultural museum in Detroit.

In 1892 the first gas tractor was run out of the experimental department of the Case company at Racine.

Grand Detour Growing. While the Case company was becoming established, another historic plant also was growing—the Grand Detour-Plow company at Dixon. Major Leonard Andrus, who came from Vermont and started a settlement at Grand Detour, aided in establishing the first plow factory, after the first steel plow was made of an old saw blade. The company thrived and prospered, and in July, 1919, it was acquired by the Case company.

On Aug. 1, 1928, Case acquired the Emerson-Brantingham plant at Rockford, with its line of farm machines, and thereafter a complete line of implements and machinery carrying the Eagle trade mark of Case was offered. The Emerson-Brantingham company, now the Rockford works of the Case company, was founded in 1852. The latest addition to the Case company was the purchase, on Feb. 1, of the Rock Island Plow company.

One of the important contributions of the Emerson-Brantingham company was the foot-lift riding plow, first step away from the old method of raising and lowering plow bottoms by hand levers.

Harmon—The Women's Foreign Missionary society will be in charge of the morning services in the M. E. church on next Sunday, March 7. They will have Mrs. H. J. Currens, missionary from Siberia, as the guest speaker. The services will start promptly at 11:00 A. M. Everyone is welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. John Harney are spending several days in the home of their son, Earl Harney in Walnut. Mr. and Mrs. John Harney are leaving soon for Henry, Ill., where they will reside.

Mr. and Mrs. George Glaser motored to Sublette on Thursday and visited in their home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Malach.

Mr. and Mrs. Denis Bohm were hosts to their pinocle club on Tuesday evening, with a pot luck dinner preceding three tables of pinocle. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brandenburg were the winners of high score prizes, and Mr. and Mrs. Lavern Lauritzen, the consolation. The club will meet on March 9 in the home of Lavern Lauritzen, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brandenburg were guests of the club.

Dan Carroll is a patient in the Dixon hospital, receiving treatment for an infection in his hand. He is getting along nicely.

THE maximum temperature of the day usually occurs toward the middle of the afternoon, although the supply of solar heat is greatest at noon. Then this temperature begins to drop, as the atmosphere cools, and this cooling process continues until the appearance of the morning sun checks it.

DAPHNE BRETT, charming young New York advertising executive, rents her deceased father's Connecticut estate to LARRY SMITH, attractive young architect, and promptly likes him tremendously. Daphne has one sister, JENNIFER, six years younger,
and just out of college.

Jennifer is a vivacious, somewhat selfish sister who resents Daphne's guidance and her first night in New York she takes TUCK ALLEN, Daphne's old beau.
Then Daphne sees in Jennifer a challenge to herself—a challenge to get a bit more from her own life than a career.

Daphne believes Larry is married until Jennifer announces one night that Larry had called and is NOT married. She says
she's going to get her cap for him.
The next Sunday Tuck and Jennifer and Daphne visit Brett Hall and Larry. Larry asks if he may see Daphne again. Back in New York Jennifer tells her sister,
"You've fallen in love!"
Daphne denies this but a silent struggle between the girls for the same man becomes a fact.

CHAPTER IX

ANNE COCKERELL shook herself and bent her head forward. Water ran in rivulets down the brim of her hat and fell on the carpet as she bent to remove her overshoes.

"Get your lazy bones out of that chair, Jennifer Brett, and give me a hand with these packages," she said.

"Sorry, darling, I didn't know you needed help," Jennifer took Anne's umbrella and coat. "Come over by the fire. I'll bring you some dry slippers. How about a cup of hot tea?"

Anne sighed and then smiled.
"Jennifer, when I get ready to scoot you, you go and get sweet on me."

"So that's why you came early?
Can't you wait until Daph gets here and you can both give me a good combined lecture?" Jennifer tweaked a curl at the back of Anne's head.

"No, that isn't why I came early. I wanted to see Daphne and we had planned to have dinner together tonight but I've got to work so I dropped by on my way home. And I'm a girl who believes in seizing opportunities.
Like this one. I just thought maybe we could have a good old-fashioned talk."

"About what, Anne, men or money?" Jennifer was pleasantly impudent.

"Money," Anne was curiously embarrassed. "I mean about Daphne's money. I know you aren't going to like this, honey,
but I think you ought to know about it. Daphne's sending you to a secretarial school means that..."

Jennifer sighed. "Oh, Anne, help me! You're going to say that it costs a lot and you want me to make good. Well, I never will. I simply loathe secretarial school
and I can't make those funny little lines but Daph won't let me give it up. Anybody's think I hadn't tried to earn a living when I had my job in Wall Street. It wasn't my fault that I got fired."
"What do you want to do?"
Jennifer played with the tassel
on her belt and sighed. "I don't know. That's the trouble. There are so few careers..."

ANNE studied her for a few minutes and bit her tongue to keep back all she knew. She might have said: "The trouble is that you are having a lovely time playing house in Daphne's apartment. You don't want to do anything but stay in bed until noon and stay up all night. You don't want to help." She didn't say it.

She was saved from saying anything more. Daphne called from the other side of the door.

Jennifer jumped up and opened
it. "Oh, Daphne, what on earth have you there?" She began relieving Daphne of the packages that weighted her down.

"Hello, Anne. I've been Christmas shopping. Not that I can afford it, but it's got to be done and Christmas is only two weeks away.
And what a night to be shopping!"

"Winter seems to have come with a vengeance," Anne said comfortably, stretching her toes
out to the fire.

"Hasn't it though? It's a night out not fit for man nor beast. It feels like rain and if we have rain over these frozen ruts it will not be any fun getting around New York."

"Speaking of getting around"— Jennifer looked up from the tea
she had poured for Daphne—
"Tuck is taking me to a party in the Village tonight."

Daphne had not had her tea,
her nerves were jumpy and she was tired. "You're not going,"
she said flatly.

"Come off it, Daphne. Any-body'd think I was an infant in swaddling clothes who couldn't keep her eyes open after 6 o'clock."

"That isn't the point," Daphne went on coldly. "The point is that you've got to get to school in the morning and I know that crowd in the Village. I don't happen to like them. For that matter I don't happen to like you going about with Tuck all the time. I told you that. His friends are entirely too sophisticated for you. You are not going out with Tuck tonight."

"I DIDN'T really mean it, Anne,
but . . . oh, I give up! I'm really annoyed at Tuck. He knows she's only 18 and he has deliberately disregarded my wishes. I don't want her running with that Village crowd."

"Oh, since we're in the romance department, any word from Smith?"

"No word from Smith," Daphne said shortly.

"No harm meant. I just thought that speaking of 'the right man'
..."

The telephone rang in the bedroom. "I'll get it," Jennifer called back.

"It's for you, Daph. It's Smith." Daphne really bounced out of her chair. Anne couldn't hear what she said but she could hear the purr in her voice.

She put on her overshoes and tucked her hair under her damp hat.

"I guess you won't mind if I run along tonight?"

Daphne, with a flush on her cheek, a broad smile, said, "Must you, Anne? He's coming right up. We're going to a German restaurant and to see that ridiculous melodrama, 'The Drunkard'."

"I call that subtle!" Jennifer said. "The first time he calls up and asks for a date, she accepts.
Keep 'em dangling. That's my method."

"Anne, shall I wear the black taffeta?"

"I think a little Tyrolean costume would be cute," Jennifer proffered.

Then, when Daphne went to the door with Anne, Jennifer slipped into the bedroom, closed the door
behind her, and took the telephone from its stand. She was going to pursue her learning her own way.

No sister was going to tell her what to do. Keeping her in like a schoolgirl. She was a woman who had a right to do as she pleased!

She dialed her number and bit
on her lower lip.

"Hello . . ." she said after a moment. "I can't talk now but
... I'll meet you later . . . yes
... I told you I would . . . I've been good too long."

She put the receiver back on the hook.

CHAPTER X

LARRY SMITH slipped his hand
under the great collar of Daphne's coat and pushed it up around her ears. Then he whispered for a taxi. It was the tenth taxi he had tried to get. An icy wind tore through 53rd street but Daphne didn't feel it.

"Let's walk," she said, "we'll never get one with this theater crowd. My place is only a few blocks."

"You don't think I'm going to let you go home, do you? We're seeing the town, young lady."

Then, laughing because they had darted across the slippery pavement to triumphantly capture the prize, they continued to laugh.
They'd been laughing all evening,
Daphne remembered, laughing
over nothing.

They'd talked so long over their pigs' knuckles and sauerkraut
they'd been late for the theater and the next day neither of them
could have told you what happened at the theater because, with their eyes on the stage, they'd been aware of nothing but each other.

Larry found her hand and swallowed it in his own.

"Having fun?" he asked.
She murmured something that sounded like "Umm." But he knew. They both knew something that needed no words. They needed nothing but to be together.

THEY went to the most expensive night club in town and sat looking into each other's eyes.
She hadn't heard from him, he said, as though it was important to explain everything to her from now on, because he'd been off on a business trip. His uncle, in whose firm and whose footsteps

he was one day to follow, was bidding for construction jobs in a midwest exposition.

"Do you often go far away for such a long time?" she asked and felt suddenly bereft, as though loneliness in the future was already weighing her down.

"Perhaps you'll be glad to have me away when you realize how much of you I want to see."

Her eyes denied it.
He said: "Look, we've got to arrange our program."

"Are we going to have a program?" If anyone other than Larry had said that, she'd have dismissed the idea immediately.

But Larry wasn't any one person.

"We'll have to discover what plays you want to see. And how you feel about winter sports—"

What she wanted!
Later Daphne would wrap herself in the warm comfort of what that meant, his complete regard for the things that would make her happy. Now she was content to listen.

"And what about hockey? And the six-day bicycle races?"
"Love them both," she responded promptly. But if he had said,
"Do you like to stand for hours watching men excavating?" she'd have said it was her favorite pastime.

"We'll do them all. Let's begin with a new show on Saturday.
Sunday, if it's clear, we might try skating and later we'll go—"

"Wait a minute," Daphne implored, laughing. "It's Thursday
now and Saturday and Sunday are so nearly here. Aren't you rushing me?"

"Certainly," he said, "but I'm twenty-eight years old and up to now my life has been misspent.
I've got to make up for those years."

There was wonder in Daphne's eyes that looked back into his—
and into the years ahead.

THIS has never happened to me before, Daphne thought. I must be careful because anything that can open such doors to my heart—this new feeling of coming home—can hurt me.

Later she would straighten it out with herself. Now, she could sip her drink and give herself to the moment.

"Saturday, it is," she said. She thought of Jennifer's method of "keeping 'em dangling."
Jennifer!

Daphne looked at the watch on Larry's wrist. It was 10 minutes past 2.

"Larry, I must call Jennifer. I told her I'd be home by midnight
and she might worry about me."

AT first when her number didn't answer, Daphne thought that Jennifer was sleeping but when the buzz had been prolonged and repeated, she knew that Jennifer had deliberately disobeyed her orders. Why hadn't Jennifer defied her and said she was going anyway? Daphne would have preferred that to Jennifer's doing it under cover.

The floor show was on when she came out of the booth. The lights were dimmed save for the flood light on the dancing chorus.
The white light threw greenish shadows on the faces of the guests, distorted them, yet at once Daphne saw Tuck Tinsley.

She withdrew into the shadows until the lights came up. Waiting to see who was with him. Waiting to see Jennifer yet not believing Jennifer. She didn't want to spoil Jennifer's night.

But Jennifer was not with Tuck.
It was obvious that he was one of a party of four which did not include Jennifer.

She quickened her footsteps and returned to her table. She didn't sit down.

"Larry, I've got to go now. Our telephone doesn't answer and I'm worried about Jennifer."

He agreed they should leave at once.

Worry haggled at the back of her mind, the lush delight of her happiness dissolved. The taxi-ride to her apartment was a silent one.

"Thank you, Larry, for a grand evening!" She gave him her smile but her eyes were still clouded.

"I'll call you in the morning,"
he said.

Then he was gone. Hours later, as the light deepened and the night became morning, Daphne pacing the floor to the tempo of her rising fears, thought desperately, I need him. He'd know what to do.

Four o'clock. Five o'clock. Five-thirty. Jennifer was gone! Her evening wrap and the white satin frock were gone.

But where? With whom?
Daphne asked herself over and over again and, at last, fell

At first, when she heard the imperative knocking at her door,
she couldn't remember what it was.

in the statement of inventory compiled from reports by the different state offices, departments and institutions and included in the aumade, however, the state has nearly completed a $17,500,000 welfare institution improvement program and an armory building program costing several million dollars.

Officials said the inventory always is slightly more than a year
late since the reports are not required by law to be submitted before Sept. 1 each year. The auditor's office said no valuation figures for 1936 were available yet.

The total 1935 value was slightly more than $4,000,000 above the 1934 inventory. Valuations for 1935 and 1934, respectively, compared as follows:

Comparative Values
Real estate, $16,588,853; $16,549-476.

Building and improvements, $104-
845,843; $100,798,405.

Personal property, $25,227,989;
$25,102,437.

The public welfare department reported that $17,500,000 program
nearing completion with the aid of Federal funds represented almost one-third additional capital investment in two years, compared to the $54,500,000 invested in welfare institutions from the beginning of the state up to June 30, 1935.

Welfare officials claim the building program is the largest ever undertaken by any state and that never before has so large a proportion of the total available funds
been under contract in such a short time.

Among the valuations placed on state property at the close of 1935 were:

New Mail Train
A change in the mail service was made this week, and now the Chicago letter mail and newspapers are thrown from Train No. 15, passing through here at about 2 A. M. A service that the local community enjoyed in the past until a few years ago.

For a number of years the mail has been carried through on the fast mail train to Clinton, Iowa, and is brought by No. 18, the Portland Rose. No. 18 being a through train from the west coast, was often late in the winter which of course could not be helped, but complaints arose from both town and country patrons.

When No. 18 was late and with heavy parcel post mail coming on No. 3, it would often be necessary to have the delivery window and money order window at the post office closed for a portion of the morning, which was a great inconvenience. The change in service is welcomed by the public and the morning mail will again be distributed before the business day begins.

Midwinter Meeting
The annual midwinter meeting of the Lee County Teachers association will be held at Amboy High school on Friday, March 19, 1937. The principal speaker of the day will be Mr. C. C. Stadman, first assistant to the state superintendent of public instruction. An added feature of the program will be a panel discussion carried on by the high school students. There will be no school here Friday, March 19, which is good news to all pupils.

Scholastic Week
In an effort to impress upon the student the importance of being a good scholar, scholastic week was agreed upon by the teachers. All this week each student was urged to do his or her best in his school work and show as much improvement as possible.

Being a good student and scholar has many values other than the mere sign of value that is a grade. In school, by studying, we form habits of diligence, we become accustomed to really seeking instead of waiting. In the outside world also the best jobs and opportunities come to those who have made the best grades in school. A grade, in a way, is an index to a person, for it shows that he is interested, not afraid of work, and has really learned something in school.

Scholastic week has never been tried before, but it is working well and springs from a worthy aim on the part of the teachers. They realize that much of an education comes through work and effort and are trying to instill this idea into the minds of the student.

Coming Events
March 12—High school orchestra plays at Carthage school.
March 19—Teacher's Institute.
March 20—Election. (Do not forget to note on March 20. Please consider the well and with prejudice. Remember, we are counting on you to help us.)

June 3—Graduation. School closes.

Events of This Week
March 1-5—Scholarship week. On Thursday, March 4 at 3:06 P. M. Chief Red Eagle gave an Indian program to assembly, consisting of three Indians in dance costume and a lecture.
On Monday of this week a new student, Eugene Giron, of Sterling high school, entered our high school as a junior.

Debate Club
The debate club was organized on Monday with Dave Studebaker as chairman. It will meet every Monday and Friday afternoon from 3:06 to 4 o'clock. There are twelve members; Bill McDivitt, Marvin Brown, Wilbur Hartzell, David Studebaker, John Senger, Roberta Kint, Alice Jacobs, Mary Ellen Sanders, Robert Wilson, Betty Heath, Courtney Schafer, and Bernice Hartzell.

The first few weeks will be spent in studying the theory of debate from the book, "Contest Debating"

from the set of Reference Shelf Debate books available now at book stores. The state question will then be studied and some inter-scholastic debates scheduled. Mr. Kinsley has great hopes for his club.

Home Economics
The Home Economics class has just finished the unit on Child Growth and Development and some very good notebooks were turned in on this unit. The new unit started is Family Relationships and Different Types of Homes. Each pupil is planning to decorate a miniature room. She will make her own furniture and decorations for the room and choose any period style of furnishings she wishes. These, when finished, promise to be most interesting and educational for the variety will probably be quite great.

Freshman Party
Last Saturday night the freshmen held the first party they have had all year, in the school basement. Miss Lyford, the class advisor, was the chaperone. Alice Jacobs was chairman of the entertainment committee and Julia Moulton, Chairman of the refreshments committee. Bunco was the chief game of the evening and Earl LeFevre won first prize, Alice Jacobs was awarded the consolation prize. Ice cream, cake and cocoa were served as refreshments. Judging from the noise made, Miss Lyford thinks they had a pretty good time, some of the boys even stayed after the party to help wash the dishes.

Sports
This week has been quite a let down in the line of sports. Since the rush of the basketball season is over we now wish to spend that time on securing a gymnasium for next year. If we ourselves cannot enjoy the benefits this school year, we can surely do our part to help the rest for their further use and good of the school next year. Fine efforts are being put forth to let our friends know of the splendid proposition. Already no doubt, you have read "gym" in last week's paper, and heard your friends talk about it. Another plan has been made by which individuals will make known our desire for a gymnasium. A map has been made of the town, divided into sections, and a number of individuals will visit their section and boost the proposition, and give you first hand information. If we as students want work to do, here is plenty we can find. Some of the boys have made the remark that they do not know what to do with themselves since there is no more basketball. It has been quite a let down we'll admit. However next week some track will be started. After basketball track comes next in line. It means spring is coming and we once more can enjoy outdoor sports. The G. A. A. will especially appreciate this, since our meetings have had to be indoors all winter in a little two by four room as our gym. In the last G. A. A. meeting the business was concerned about our association joining the state G. A. A. It was put to a vote and voted down due to the fact of saving three dollars if we join next year rather than so late in this school year. Then too we do not have a gym, which would handicap us in trying to make our points.

There is a point system by which each member must make 600 points to be a member of the G. A. A., and a number of the points are made only by having a gym. The final meeting of the basketball squad was held last Tuesday evening. They met at the home of their coach, Mr. Kinsley, for six o'clock dinner. A fine sociable time was reported.

the United States to check the mad armament race in Europe, and that Bullitt was the man who could arrange it.

So Roosevelt, who has been toying with some such idea for a long time, told Bullitt to go to France and do his stuff.

Peace Plan
Since then, Bullitt has been discussing secretly with the French all sorts of formulas for ensuring the peace of Europe, but the one which finally seems to have evolved is the idea of a new move by President Roosevelt for a worldwide disarmament conference.

The French have been enthusiastically favoring this. They have been pointing out that Europe now sees the dread spectre of early war, and the spectre has made it panic-stricken. The nations which once opposed disarmament, they point out, now are abjectly conciliatory.

Today, the French have emphasized, is the crucial moment. A little later, it will be too late. Furthermore, only the prestige and leadership of the United States, an outside and disinterested party, would be sufficient to call an arms conference and steer it to a successful conclusion.

It is the great moment for President Roosevelt!

This is the argument which Bill Bullitt, still the idealistic, irrepressibly optimistic ambassador, has brought back to his close friend, the president.
